

[Teacher's Notes]

Categories of Believers

- A believer is someone who has faith or trust in a set of ideas
- There are many words that are often used with the word “believers.”
- However, there are different “levels” of commitment to an idea or belief.
- For example, you may hear someone say, “My parents are devout Buddhists.” Another person may say, “I am not a practicing Buddhist.”
- It seems simplistic, but it works to describe believers by what they think (heart) and what they actually do (action)
- These words can be used for followers of most religious groups.
- After I check their understanding of the meanings, I give them the Heart vs. Action ideas as a listening/ notetaking task.

What is the difference?

1. Ask someone or look up the meanings of the words in Column A.
2. Write the meanings in column B. Remember to choose the meaning that can describe someone’ beliefs.
3. After you do this, we will discuss columns C and D together.
4. I will explain columns C and D for a very simple way to remember the meanings.

A Adjectives to describe	B Meaning	C Heart	D Action
a/ Hypocritical a hypocrite
b/ Nominal not a practicing ____ c/ Committed similar to: faithful, devout, good, dedicated. practicing d/ Strict
e/ Fanatical similar to: extremist, zealous, a zealot, radical

Be careful! “I believe there is a God.” IS DIFFERENT THAN “I believe in God”
